Houston has won a golden ticket. Candytopia, a traveling candy-studded installation that gives candy lovers an immersive experience into all things candy, will begin its sugar rush on June 14. Tickets go on sale May 28 at noon.

A confectionery theme park, Candytopia consists of more than a dozen rooms with interactive art installations built around candy, including a marshmallow pit. The mini-theme park launched in California in 2018 and has traveled to San Francisco, New York, Minneapolis, and currently is running in Atlanta and Dallas.

The Best Refinance Opportunity Of This Decade

Candytopia is the work of celebrity candy artist Jackie Sorkin of TLC's "Candy Queen." Sorkin's team also creates pieces unique to each city: The Statue of Liberty and yellow cabs made of candy for New York; Big Tex for Dallas. The Houston installation will feature elements inspired by Bayou City culture.
