

Defining the Houston Design District

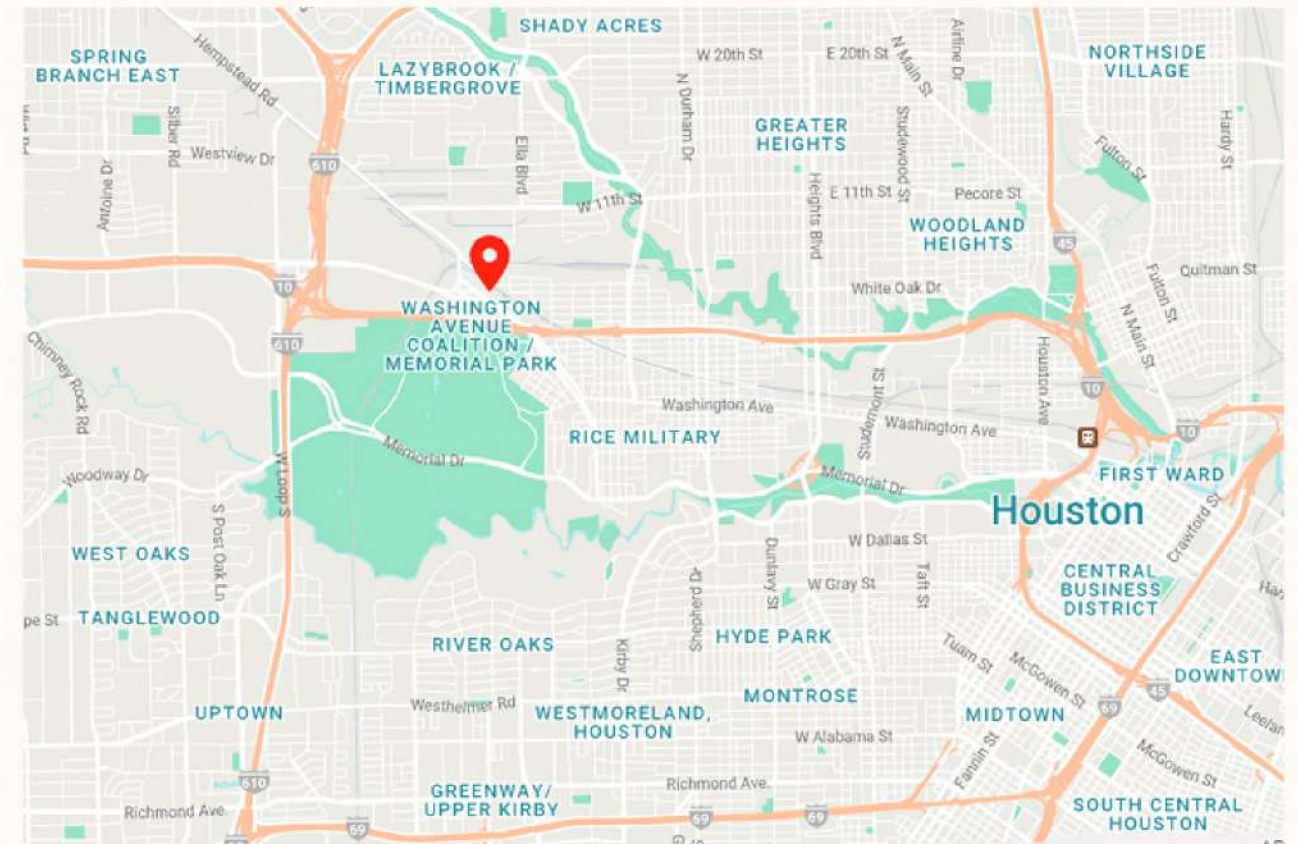

7800 WASHINGTON

A Levcor Project

Located within Houston's urban core, 7800 Washington is an award-winning, adaptive, re-use development with premiere access to the city's most sought-after neighborhoods. The building, a 66,000 SF red-brick, dock-high warehouse, was built in 1960 and has a rich and storied history of being home to some of Houston's notable industrial tenants. 7800 Washington is part of the flourishing Washington Avenue corridor known as the Houston Design District -- a vibrant "live, work & play" destination, a business community and residential neighborhood dedicated to innovative design, architecture, fashion, and hospitality. This has quickly become a dense and impressive mixed-use neighborhood of Houston. Home to world-class restaurants, recently developed high-rise apartment complexes, and an impressive nightlife, Washington Avenue represents a growing and important urban node of Houston.
